

SPOTLIGHT

The December PAC Spotlight shines on:

Central Hardin High School's Principal Tim Isaacs

What have you participated in at the PAC?

Annie, The Hunchback of Notre Dame, Lend Me a Tenor, Les Miserables, The Nutcracker, The Little Mermaid are some of my favorites.

What have been your most rewarding PAC experiences?

The experiences I have enjoyed the most have included the opportunities to work with my students and develop working relationships that were truly collaborative. I have had the privilege of watching my students and my own children grow up with amazing experiences that students in other districts aren't blessed to have as an option. In addition, I have been able to push past some of my own limitations and grow as a performer and a person.

What did you learn from your PAC experiences?

Each production you are blessed to be a part of is different. I have been a part of large cast musicals that had so many moving pieces, and done plays with very small intimate casts. I have worked with multiple directors that bring their own leadership styles and expectations to the table. One of the things I enjoy the most is finding "my role" and the way I can contribute the most each time I am a part of a cast. If you open yourself up to the possibilities you can develop some amazing relationships while at the same time learning a lot about yourself.

Why is the PAC important to you?

The people I have met and have the privilege to work with are the first thing I think about. From the professionals that challenged me to step up, to the young people that reminded me to provide an example. For me at least it all comes back to the relationships. The PAC has had a positive impact on not just me, but both my girls have great memories both on the stage and in the audience.

Why should the PAC be important to others?

I don't think we understand as a community how blessed we are to have this resource. The PAC brings opportunities to this area that not many communities our size usually have. Programs like Youth Theater of Hardin County continue to flourish, and having a resource like the PAC make this ongoing success possible.
