

SPOTLIGHT

The February PAC Spotlight shines on:

Central Hardin High School's Garrett Milby

What do you want to do when you grow up?

High School English/Theater Teacher

What have you participated in at the PAC?

I have participated in productions at the PAC since I was little, starting with a Missoula Children's Theater and, more recently, with a production of Decision Height by the Central Hardin Drama Club.

What have been your most rewarding PAC experiences?

One rewarding PAC experience was when I was a stage manager for Decision Height with Central Hardin Drama Club, and I could use PAC equipment and call a show while still being a high schooler. It taught me a lot about how coordinated a backstage crew needs to be and how to communicate effectively. Another experience has been working with the Youth Theater of Hardin County for the past few years, and I have been able to work with a community focused on education and performing.

What did you learn from your PAC experiences?

Theater as an art form takes a community and clear communication to create all the shows and performances you see as an audience member.

How have you benefited from the PAC?

The PAC has provided many opportunities, allowed different groups I'm a part of to perform in the space, and provided a positive environment with the staff and theater.

Why is the PAC important to you?

It was where I first discovered my love for theater and performing. It has fostered that love of having a place that helps bring the community together and creates an environment that lifts up its performers regardless of background.

Why should the PAC be important to others?

It's a place for the community to come together and not just watch a show, but share ideals, promote local business, and let people from different areas come together to watch/make a show that captivates audiences.
